WASHINGTON, Feb. 8. -(A)-The house ways and means committee, voting along partisan lines, gave its approval today to continuation of secretary Hull's tinuation of secretary Hull's reciprocal trade program for another three years.

The continuance probably will be called up for house action week after next. Rep. Boland (D. Penna) predicted it would win approval after he had polled the house in his capacity as majority whip.

On the final vote of committee approval, 14 democrats voted for the continuing resolution and 10 republicans were opposed. Rep. Disney (D-Okla) vyted "present."

Just before this final vote, an amendment by Disney to pre-

The Oklahoman has contended that lowering of the import excise tax on oil from one-half to one-quarter cent per barrel, for a certain quota of the commodity, in the Venezuelan trade pact was harmful to independent American producers.

There are excise taxes on oil, coal, lumber and copper.

Committee action came after several weeks of hearings.

The house completed legislative action on a $251,588 emergency national defense appropriation bill and sent it to the White House for President Roosevelt's signature.

PEOPLE CHALLENGED TO TAKE ADVANTAGE CHEMURGIC PROGRAM

SCHOFFELMAYER SPEAKER ANNUAL MEETING CHAM-BER OF COMMERCE

By CHARLTON GUNTER Daily Sun Staff.

Corsicana and Navarro county was challenged to marshal its great heritage, financial extensive re. sources, strategic location, strong leadership and adequate manpower and take advantage of opportunities provided in the chemurgic program of production which utilizes raw materials replaceable annually outside the limits of human consumption by Victor H. Schoffelmayer, agricultural editor of the Dallas Morning News, in the principal address at the twenty-second annual membership meeting of the Corsicana Chamber of Commerce in the cafeteria of the ing of the Corsicana Chamber of Commerce in the cafeteria of the senior high school Tuesday night. Visitors were in attendance from a wide area and swelled the crowd to capacity proportions. Retiring President J. M. Dyer presided at the meeting and Miss Carolyn Megarity played a number of popular selections on the plane as the guests of the evening were filing into the dining room. The invocation was pronounced by the Rev. Allen A. Peacock, pastor of the Eleventh Avenue Meth-sociations of friends for pleasure or for a specific purpose was always possible and normally the order of the day or hour, and welcomed the membership of the Chamber of Commerce and the numerous visitors to the meeting. He declared the true purpose of the meeting was to hear tributes to service, not in a selfish manner, but to an entire community "which we are honor-ed to call home."

Mr. Mays admitted chambers of commerce had their faults but their sole aim was to serve their communities and if they failed to meet the test they simply failed to exist. He pointed out the large

The speaker asserted the machine age, which began with the discovery of coal and its utilization to produce steam in England, had reached its climax and was truly the greatest era in world history but unfortunately for the rich southwest, its development in America had been concentrated in the eastern states. Mr. Schoffelmayer pointed to numerous crops in which Texas led in production and for which no processing plants existed in the state, and the list included wool, mohair and cotton; other great resources of the state essential to manufactures were listed as grain sorghums, timber reserves, oil, sulphur and salt.

New Era at Hand.

He declared the farmers must realize a new era was at hand and prepare to readjust themselves to changed conditions regardless of the cost. He blamed the fallure of Texas farmers to realize the need of intensive production methods for fewer acres for the deciling in cotton acreage in the past ten years equivalent to the entire decrease of other southern states.

in cotton acreage in the past ten years equivalent to the entire decrease of other southern states. He said other southern states were alded in maintaining their acreages by the fact they sold their products to their own mills.

Referring to the problem of the blackland belt and Corsicana and Navarro county in particular, the speaker said this problem should not be so particularly difficult because of the proximity of many potential chemurgic materials and the wealth of good business men and other necessary resources. He pointed out the city had already survived a great oil boom that had trebled present values and remedida a progressive community, realizing that a growing city could not depend on one item alone. He insisted that the chemurgic movement dealt only with the use of excess natural products, and did not depend on exhaustible resources such as coal and oil but upon materials renewable annual-

President, through the state department, now negotiates trade treaties expires June 12. The pending measure would exend it for three years from that date. The ways and means committee only recently completed its hearings on the bill, which has aroused strong republican and some democratic opposition. Secretary Hull, a leading exponent of the reciprocal treaty method of lowering tariffs, testified the system should be continued both as an immediate help to the development of international commerce and as an eventual aid to the creation of world peace.

Opponents included various trade, labor and agricultural groups which argued that American markets were adversely affected by lowering tariff barriers.

LACK OF FEDERAL APPROVAL OF MERIT SYSTEM CUT FUNDS

FEBRUARY OLD AGE PAY-MENTS MAY BE REDUCED BY HALF IN TEXAS

ened to cult recivary payments of 120,000-odd Texas old age pensioners in half.

That recipients who suffered a flat $6-a-month slash in October might see their average payment of $9.13 this month sliced 50 per cent appeared a "distinct danger" to Adam Johnson, director of the state administration.

The director said the barrier was a merit system of employment which the federal government demanded and which state officials asserted was impossible under current state laws.

He added that a plan, worked out with federal social security board officials, was in Washington awaiting approval.

"Whether it will be approved, I don't know," Johnson asserted. "I do know we have received no pension matching money. It may be true the funds will arrive without approval of the plan. We

IN FORT WORTH FOR ADVANCE MOVEMENT

Methodists from all over the Central Texas Conference gathered in First Church, Fort Worth, today, as one of the regional meetings of the "Methodist Advance Movement" in the new Methodist church. The Fort Worth meeting was one of some eighty that will be held all over the United States at various large centers.

dresses were made by other bishops and visiting pastors and laymen. The meeting opened at 9:30 a. m. At noon there was a large banquet meeting and the day will close tonight with a huge Young People's rally.

This series of meetings of the new church was the outcome of the Uniting Conference held in Kansas City at which time a resolution was passed for meetings of this kind throughout the United States in order to get some 8,000,000 Methodists on the march for a greater Methodism and its work throughout the United States. It is estimated that through this method millions of Methodists will be acquainted with the setup of the new church and its future program.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—(P)—The "dirt" farmer gradually is replacing the college professor and the "brain-truster" in key positions of the administration. This shift, officials said today, is an expression of a declared policy of Secretary Wallace to make the farm programs carry out more accurately the thinking of farmers themselves.

Inasmuch as these programs may be a major issue in the forthcoming presidential election, the administration is particularly eager to

The undersecretaryship will be assumed soon by Claude R. Wickard, operator of a 380-acre grain and livestock farm in Indiana.

Grover B Hill, a Texas cattleman widely known throughout the west, was appointed assistant secretary two months ago Earlier R. M. "Spike" Evans, operator of Iowa corn and hog farms, was made administrator of the AAA, replacing the Economist Tolley

These newcomers will be seen and heard in the farm states during the coming months.
